[From the Nashville Banner]

Bill Arp To His Old Friend.

Mr. John Happy:

SUR—I want to write to you personally about some things thats weighin on me. I look upon you as a friend, and I feel like droppin a few lines by way of unburthenin my sorrowful reflexions. For the last few years you have travelled round right smart and must have made a heap of luminus observations. I hear you are now livin in Nashville, where you can see all sides of everything and read all the papers—where you can study Paradise lost without a book, and see the Devil and his angels, without drawing on the imagination, and I thought may be you might assist me in my troubled feelings. I have always, Mr. Happy, endeavored to see the bright side of every pikter if it had any, but there is one or two subjecks about which I had nigh gin it up.

I want you to tell me if you can, about what time are the black republicans goin to quit persecutin our people? What are they so everlastin mad with us about? Old Skewball says its for treeson that we've gone and done, and that I am the slowest perseevin man he ever seed not to have found it out.

Now Treeson is a mighty bad thing and any man found guilty of treeson ought to be talked to by a preacher right under the gallus, and then be allowed to stand on nothin for a few hours by the clock. Shore enuf treeson I mean. Treeson where a man slips around on the sly in times of war and takes sides agin his country. Jest as though, for instance, I should have worked agin my suvrin State after she had seceded, and had stole her powder or deserted her in her time of peril, while she was defendin herself aginst the combined assaults of the world, the flesh and the devil. I wouldn't have blamed nobody for hanging me for the like, would you? But Skewball says we aint got no suvrin States—that the war hav settled the question agin us on that pint. I don't think so, my friend. I admit that we aint nothin in partikler now, but we did hav suvrin States before the war, and the sword aint settled nor unsettled no great principles. There aint no trial of right or wrong by wager of battles now-a-days. For mighty nigh a hundred years this country hav been a big debatin society on these questions. From the time of Hamilton and Jefferson down to 1861, the right of a State to dissolve her own partnership have been argued by powerful minded men, and there has been more for it than agin it. More Presidents—more Senators, more statesmen, more judges, more people, Massychusetts and Connecticut were for it at one time, and bellered round and pawed dirt amazin to git out, but they found out Barcus was willin and they didn't go. I believe, however, that old Nutmeg did stay out about two hours and a half.

Well the South went out mity unwillingly, Mr. Happy, as you know. She had been mity nigh kicked out for a long time, and there was a big party that wanted us to go out and stay out. Every body knows we dident git along in peace, so we concluded to do like Abreham and his brother-in-law: to seperate our households. What they wanted to keep us for I never could see, and can't see yit. I wouldent have a nigger or a dog to stay round me that dident want to. Some say they wanted us to strengthen em agin their enemies in case of a furrin war. Does any man in his sences expect us to help the black republicans to whip any body? Have we got any worse enemies than they are? They cant make us fight I reckon if we dont want to. We've fout enuf and made nothing by it but glory, and we aint a going to jine in another war to gratify other people—Dodds says before he'd pull a trigger for Thad Stephens, he'd have his soul transmigrated to a bench leg'd fice, and bark at his daddy's mules 2,000 years. I wonder if the experience of the last four years aint satisfied these fellows that our boys are a dangerous set to be turned loose in time of war. Would'nt you think, that, as a matter of policy, they would soft-sodder us a little, and quit their slanderin. If we do fight for em, there will be one condition certain—they must be put where David put Uriah, and our boys mout consent to make a charge or two behind em at the point of the bagnet.

But I want you to tell me, John, if I am right about the history of this bisness. It aint a long story and I'll tell it the way I see it. Old Pewrytan went off one day with some ships, and took a few beads and juce-harps and bought up a lot of captured niggers from the Hotentots or some other tots, and stole a few more from the coast of Afriky, and brought em over and educated em to work in the field, and cut wood, and skeer bars and so fourth, but not includin votin nor musterin nor the jury bisness, nor so fourth.

Well, after a while they found that the cold winds and codfish airs of New England dident agree with the nigger, and so they begun to slide em down South a fast as possible. Arter they had sold em and got the money, they jined the church and got sanctified about slavery, sorter like the woman that got converted and then gave all her novels away to her unconverted sister. Well, the Old Dominion and sich of her sons as Washington, and Jefferson, and Madison, and Randolph, bought em and worked em to satisfaction, whereupon old Pew got jealous and began to preach agin it to break it down. The fakt is, they woudent work gals in their faktories if it warent so profitable, for thay are conscientiously opposed to everything that dont put money in their pockets.

Arter while they went into the striped almanak bisness, makin bloody pikters of poor lasserated niggers gettin a hundred lashes for nuthin, and mournin for their first born because they were not. Then they started the stealin program, and while we were tryin all the big courts and little courts to get back one sikly mellater by the name of Dred Skot, they were stealin from five to fifty a day, and coverin their carcasses all over with nigger larceny, and smuglin the Constitution into an abolishun mush. They built a fence around the institution as high as Haman's gallus and hemmed it in, and laid seige to it jest like an army would besege a city to starve out the inhabitants.—They kept peggin at us untell we got mad—sho enuff mad—and we resolved to cut loose from em and paddle our own canoo.

Now, all this time we had some good frends among em—some who swore we were imposed upon, and said we had good cause to dissolve the partnership. They said that if we did secseed and the abolishunests made war upon us, they would stand by us and throw their lives and fortunes and their sakred honar right in the breach, and the first fight would be over their dead bodies and so forth and so on. My mamory is bad, but I remember that some of em were named James Buchanan and Dan Dickinson, and John Cokran, and Logan, and Cushin, and Butler, surnamed the Beast, and McLernand, and Steven A. Douglass, who got his commission about the time he died, and carried it with him to parts unknown, and lastly a man by the name of Andy Johnson, who I suppose are some distant relation to the President of the United States of Amerika, but a man aint responsible for the bad conduct of his relations, and I dont throw it up to nobody. I suppose that our President are doing the best he can, and Mr. Ethridge oughtn't to be taken up his record.

Well, the war come on, and show enuf Logan and Cushin and McLernand and Butler and Company buzzed around a while like bumble bees, till they were bought up and then they lit on the other side. They got their reward, and they are welcome to it as far as I am concerned.

How is it now, Mr. Happy? They conquered us by the sword, but they havent convinced us of nuthin much that I know of. All is lost save honor, and that they can't steal from us nor tarnish.

If they had held out the hand of fellowship, we would have made friends and buried the hatchet. But the very minit they whipped us, they began to holler treason from one end of the country to the other, just like they had made a bran new diskovery. It seemed to strike em of all of a sudden like an Xpost fakto law, and they wanted to go into a general hanging business, and keep it up as long as they could find rope and timber.

Now, the idea of several millions Amerikan freemen being guilty of treason at once! The idea of applyin such a crime to eleven great suvreen States, which met in solemn convention, and in the light of day dissolved a Union they had created, and which had been a disunion for twenty years! The idea of applyin treason to the Old Dominion, the muther of States and of Washington and Jefferson and Madison and Marshall and Patrick Henry, and all the Lees, and who give away all the territory in the northwest for nuthin! Is she to be scandalized by these new light Christians, who are compounded from all the scum of creation, and think that Paul and Peter and Revelations have been for 200 years makin special arrangements for receivin their sanctified souls in Paradise?—Treeson the dickens! Wheres your dictionary? Wheres Dan'l Webster? Wheres the history of the Amerikan revolution?

No it aint treeson or reeson, but its devilish infernal inhuman hate. What do they keep Mr. Davis in jail for? I hear sum say that it aint Mr. Johnson's voluntary doings; but the tremengius pressure of surrounding circumstances. Durn the circumstances. Aint Mr. Davis a great and good man? If Andy Johnson aint an infidel, wouldent he swap chances for heaven with him and give all his earthly estate to boot? If Mr. Davis' honor and integrity, and patriotism, and true courage were weighed in a balance against Sumner's and Stevens,' and all of his enemies, wouldent he outweigh them all? Won't his conduct in Mexico, and in the late war, and his nobility of character live long and grow bright in history, while the memory of the howns that are baying at him in his dungeon will sink into oblevion? I think so—thats what I say, and Charles O'Conner and all the women in the country will go my halves.

But there aint no particular point in all this, Mr. Happy. It's only my opinion, thats all. I may be a tarnal fool, and I sometimes feel that I am a fool about every thing, and don't know nothin. I'm tryin my best, however, to take things jest as I find em, and my principal bisness for the last two months have been weanin niggers for to make em feel free. I put em all out to take care of themselves, but they keep comin back to me, and it keeps me working day and night to provide for em. I've been willin a long time for em to be free, if they could take take care of themselves, and I don't know what Thad Stevens is a fussin about, unless he is jest mad because our boys burnt his iron works. If thats all, we can plead the ruins of various simler establishments in these regions, and get a judgment agin him.

But I'm about through, Mr. Happy, with what I had to say. Only this—if there ever was an afflikted people that needed friends it's us. If we've got any friends any where, I want 'em to show their hands and stand by us in our trouble. I feel like reachin out to the five points of the compass in search of sympathy, and if there is an honest statesman or brave soldier north of the line who loves his fellow-men, let him open his heart and meet us on a half-way ground. We aint afeered of beasts or varmints—of devils or demons—of Stevens or Sumner—but we are a warm hearted and forgivin people, and love our friends. Aint we, and don't we? Yours, everlastingly,

BILL ARP.

P. S.—Is Brownlow dead yet? I'm writing his obituary, and thought I would like for the sad event to come off as soon as possible. I wish you would send me a list of your members who voted for that resolution declaring Gen. Lee and Mr. Davis infamous. We are gettin up a bill in the Georgy Legislatur, declarin them infamous who voted for the resolution. Fight the devil with fire, is my motto. B. A.

CAUSES OF SUDDEN DEATH.—Very few of the sudden deaths which are said to arise from disease of the heart do really arise from that cause. To ascertain the real origin of sudden deaths, an experiment has been tried in Europe, and reported to a scientific congress held at Strasburg. Sixty-six cases of sudden death were made the subject of a thorough post mortem examination; in these cases only two were found who had died from disease of the heart. Nine out of the sixty-six had died from apoplexy, while there were forty-six cases of congestion of the lungs—that is, the lungs were so full of blood they could not work, there not being room enough for a sufficient quantity of air to enter to support life. The causes that produce congestion of the lungs are—cold feet, tight clothing, costive bowels, sitting still until chilled after being warmed with labor or a rapid walk, going too suddenly from a close, heated room into the cold air, especially after speaking, and sudden depressing news operating on the blood. These causes of sudden death being known, an avoidance of them may serve to lengthen many valuable lives, which would otherwise be lost under the verdict of heart complaint. The disease is supposed to be inevitable; hence many may not take the pains they would to avoid sudden death if they knew it lay in their power.

The population of Iowa has increased at the rate of 20,000 annually since 1860, and about 27,000 since 1865.

IMPORTANT SALE.

ON WEDNESDAY, THE 24TH OF JANUARY, 1866 I shall offer for sale, my plantation in Bertie County, lying on the Roanoke river, three miles from Hill's Ferry on said river, and six from the village of Woodville in Bertie County containing 1000 acres, more or less of which 400 acres are cleared and well adapted to the growth of cotton corn wheat, &c.

There is a very fine opportunity to make a large cotton crop on the plantation the next year, as there is compost enough ready made to manure nearly 100 acres. The plantation made in 1864, 65 pounds of cotton and 4000 bushels of corn; and, with proper management, will do much better for the next year, as the most of the cotton land has had rest for the past two years. A very great advantage which this farm has is its convenience to transportation, being only one mile to a good landing on the river where there is a regular line of steamers to Norfolk weekly. In addition to the above, this is the only river farm in this portion of the county that has fire wood enough, convenient for use; there is an abundance here, and timber of almost every kind, cypress, oak, hickory, ash, gum, &c. Lumber dealers would do well to examine the land before the day of sale.

There are about 600 or 500 acres on this tract uncleared, which affords a fine range for hogs, and a free access to numberless acres of uncultivated lands renders it very profitable for the raising of cattle, colts &c.

The improvements consist of a gin house and cotton screw, overseer's house, cabins enough for 25 or 30 laborers, corn barns &c. At the same time and place, I shall sell 200 or 300 barrels of corn, fodder, mules, horses hogs, farming utensils &c.

Terms for the land, one third cash, the balance in two equal instalments, payable respectively in 12 and 18 months, and title withheld until payments made. For the perishable property, cash.

For any further particulars, address the subscriber at Enfield Halifax county, N. C.

THE PEOPLE must be trusted with their Government, and if trusted, my opinion is that they will act in good faith, and restore their former constitutional relations with all the States composing the Union.—Andrew Johnson's Letter to Gov. Sharkey, of Mississippi.

The Public Tax---Federal and State.

No subject is of more immediate importance to the people of North Carolina, than the prompt discharge of their obligations, both to the National and State governments. The singular and enviable distinction which North Carolina has heretofore enjoyed in this particular, the high eulogiums which have been passed upon our people as an honest people, every one, interested in the credit and honor of the State, should be studiously anxious to maintain.

How is this to be done in the present condition of our people, without money and without the available credit, where the money is, to obtain it—without the incentives and the encouragement to put their energies to the test to bring out the latent resources of the State; what is to be done, or how can the people of the State, within the next twelve months, meet their obligations to both governments, and yet feed and clothe our population and pay even the interest on their private indebtedness?

This is a subject which ought, before now, to have engaged the thoughts and anxieties of the most astute and able financiers of the State. Perhaps, some have had their cogitations excited by it—some have pondered the subject, yet, so far, we have seen but little suggested which proposes any certain relief, except the deferring of payment to a better day.

The direct land tax assessed upon the State by the Federal government alone exceeds $500,000, only a small portion of which has been collected; add to this the revenue tax, which is now being put in course of collection and which must cover $300,000 more, and we have the aggregate of $800,000 to be provided for during the present year, to be paid to the National government alone.

Besides this, the interest due on the bonded debt of the State already amounts to three or four millions. The necessary State expenditures for the year and the annual interest will require the sum of about $800,000.

To meet the taxes imposed by the National government, and the amount required to meet the liabilities of the State for the present year, will require a larger sum of green-backs than the State contains—more in fact than the actual monied resources of the State at the present time can produce.

In this estimate, nothing is said of the indebtedness of the Counties, town-corporations or individuals. Compulsory measures will doubtless be instituted to force the collection of portions of these three items, though, under the existing Stay law, payment may be deferred for three years.

To meet the interest already due on the bonded debt of the State, it has been suggested that the State issue her bonds to raise the amount necessary to pay off the coupons due. It is also suggested that the State assume the payment of the land tax assessed by the National government, to be discharged in three annual instalments.

The case therefore is plain, that, in order to relieve the people of the heavy burdens of taxation, which they are palpably unable to pay at present, the State must increase her bonded debt at least five millions, which, if done, will require, after the present year, an annual revenue to meet the liabilities of the State of something like $1,200,000! This aspect is discouraging, yet, with proper monied assistance in the way of Bank accommodations, to give a proper impetus to our agricultural, mechanical, manufacturing, mining and mercantile enterprise, it might be promptly and manfully met, sustaining the honor and credit of the State.

In our present condition, however, with no Banking facilities, with thousands of acres lying uncultivated, our forges and workshops closed and our general operations crippled, the prospect may well excite anxiety. Most certainly it demands the most careful pondering.

THE LATE Monroe Doctrine meeting at Cooper Institute passed resolutions even stronger than the positions assumed by Mr. Seward in his recent correspondence with the French Minister of Foreign Affairs. In addition to declaring "that it does not accord with the policy of the United States to acknowledge any monarchical government erected on the ruins of any republican government in America, under the auspices of any European power," that meeting resolved "that the United States is bound by her traditions, by every consideration of honor and dignity, by her plighted faith to the republics of America, for the sake of her safety, peace, prosperity and renown, to vindicate the great principles enunciated by MONROE, in all parts of this continent, and to establish, if necessary, by all legitimate means, that America belongs to Americans, and is consecrated to republican institutions."

The meeting also invoked the protection of the United States in behalf of Chili and Hayti, declaring that "Spain is now interfering to oppress" them.

Forney on Restoration.

It is well that the value of truth is entirely independent of the vehicle of its enunciation. A bad man may speak it, but it is still the truth and will assert itself. Accordingly, with an extreme distaste for the source whence they emanate, we have been impressed by the views set forth in a recent letter to the Philadelphia Press, written by its editor, J. W. Forney, from the seat of government. Forney occupies a relative position to both wings of the Republican party, which enables him to "speak by the card" and invests his utterances with a much more than ordinary significance.

In the letter in question, the author starts out with the broad assertion,—directly at variance with the doctrine held by the chief apostles of radicalism,—that the "Southern States are to-day practically in the Union;" and he sustains the position by the following irrefutable argument:

"Both branches of Congress have recognised this fact. United States judges, marshals and other officers have been nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate; the machinery of Federal taxation has been applied to them, and revenues collected; the Post-office Department has extended its operations into all parts of the South."

All this is very true, and the writer might have added, as a stronger illustration and proof, and more unequivocal virtual admission, of the fact, the circumstance that the States of the South have been required to participate in the amendment of the Constitution, and that further demands upon them, in the same particular, are contemplated. The idea of a people being called upon to co-operate in the amendment of a Constitution, to the protection of which they have no claim, and in the provisions of which they have no interest, is an unheard of anomaly and carries its own absurdity upon its very face.

Having correctly established that no one act of the Government, in any of its branches, executive, judicial and legislative, has tolerated, for a moment, the idea that the Southern States are out of the Union, Mr. Forney adds:

"What remains is simply a matter as to the qualifications of the applicants. To attempt to establish a system of conditions looking to a protracted probation is neither to improve the temper of the people of the South nor to strengthen the common friends of the Administration in the North. Whenever a sound and well-approved loyalist presents himself for admission to Congress, it would be the height of injustice to keep him out."

These are words of soberness and wisdom, come from what quarter they may. The South having, in perfectly good faith, submitted to all that was required of her, as the stipulated preliminary to full restoration, has a right, not simply to request,—for that is a poor boon left to the meanest supplicant,—but to demand representation in Congress. Whether the demand be conceded or not, is a question for the sense of justice of those who have the decision of the matter. There can be no doubt, however, as stated by Mr. Forney, that the protracted probation or exclusion of her members will not add to the present inclination of her people to forget the past, and bend all their energies to the re-inauguration of the old-time reign of amity and prosperity, in the Union. The aspects of the times are very threatening: the recent diplomatic correspondence between Mr. Seward and the French Minister furnishes ample ground for serious apprehensions of foreign complications; there are more than "specks" of trouble upon the horizon; and the day may speedily come when the South will be invoked to lend its powerful arm,—how powerful the events of the past four years have demonstrated,—in the common defence. With what grace can its aid be demanded, when its existence, as an integral part of the Union, is flouted and ignored? The men of the South never fight as subsidies or Hessians.

But "a sound and well-approved loyalist!" We do not know what are Mr. Forney's ideas of the character. Probably they do not accord with our own, while, at the same time, we are pleased to infer, from the general tenor of his article, that they are not such as are held by the radical extremists. Be that as it may, we hold a "sound and well-approved loyalist," in the sense necessary to secure him admission into Congress, to be a pardoned man, who has taken the oath of amnesty, with the honest intention to fulfil all its stipulations. Otherwise, the pardon means nothing, the oath means nothing, and neither are worth the paper upon which they are written. Judged by this test, and it is the only true one which can be established, under the circumstances, we hold further, that every gentleman recently elected from this State to a seat upon the floor of Congress, who has received his pardon, is entitled to admission, and that it is "the height of injustice to keep him out." We are sure, in the light of the President's recent message, and of his uniform policy, that this is his position. It is what is demanded alike by right, equity and magnanimity. And it is only because they are maddened by hate, or blinded by cupidity, that the malignant and sordid leaders of faction do not perceive and recognize it. The sleuth-hound, in pursuit of his victim, with the blood-effusion of passion in his eyes, sees no surrounding object; his scent alone is concentrated on the pitiless trail.

ORDERS given in Washington, for the relief of citizens in the far South, are delayed in their execution by the intermediary officials to a degree that will ere long call down the wrath of the President. The order for the restoration of the Methodist churches in New Orleans was baffled for three months, and was finally executed only under a peremptory command from the President. Gen. Thomas's inexcusable conduct with reference to the Episcopalians of Alabama has been equally hard to rectify; and when forced to repeal his outrageous order, by command of the President, he did so only after a very insubordinate tardiness, and with an angry growl at his rescued victim.

ANOTHER letter from the great humorist, "Bill Arp," will be found upon our first page this morning.

The Horse Question.

It is probable that the farmers of North Carolina are, about now, more concerned upon the horse question than any other. All the horses in the State, we believe, marked U. S. or C. S., are claimed by the authorities as the property of the government. Our people in various ways have become possessed of many of these horses,—in many instances compelled to swap by force their own better horses for broken down animals, in others paying their nominal or full value, but in every case, perhaps, restoring and improving a broken down horse or mule, having had them in possession for six, nine and twelve months,—but are now compelled to deliver them up to be sold as the property of the government. Under any circumstances, perhaps, they would regard it as a hardship, having become possessed of the animal honestly, but now, in view of the near approach of the crop season, and the excessive leanness of their purses, they feel that the deprivation is especially hard.

In some cases, we learn, horses and mules have been taken by government agents, without any mark to indicate ownership, upon the information, by some prejudiced neighbor, that the horse was bought from a soldier.

This state of things has forced upon Gov. Worth numerous complaints from various sections. He immediately took the most prompt measures to bring the matter before President Johnson, who, he is assured, gave it prompt attention and directed proper investigation into the matter; and also before Gen. Ruger, who, with his uniform promptness, has given the subject consideration. Up to the present period we are not fully advised what result our people may expect. The following important particulars have been elicited by the inquiries which we have made:

1. The authorities claim all animals, marked U. S. or C. S. as the property of the government, these marks being taken as prima facie evidence of the title of the government. This, of course throws the proof upon the late holder, that he is the legal and rightful owner of the animals; which proof he must make before the nearest military commandant or bring the case before Gen. Ruger. The instructions, however, from the Quartermaster General's office are, that in all "doubtful cases of title," the officer having charge of the sale "shall refer to the Quartermaster General," in order "to prevent injury to individuals having valid title to animals; and that all other animals should be sold, as required by regulations." The presentation, therefore, of title, to the officer having charge of the animals, stops the sale of any animal, until the case can be referred to the Quartermaster General.

2. We learn that Gen. Ruger restricts the taking of horses to those marked U. S. or C. S. Horses unmarked are not claimed except upon proper evidence. We also learn that he has ordered the sales of the animals to take place in the Counties where they are taken, in order to give the people opportunity to make good the title they may have.

The Test Oath.

We think it has already been repeatedly demonstrated that the "test oath" of 1862, as applied to members of Congress, is palpably unconstitutional. Perhaps the blinded devotees of fanaticism and faction do not so perceive it, yet it is charitable to conclude that a majority in the present Congress are forced to admit it. We have seen no cogent defence of its constitutionality, and the only plea which is really set up, is the right claimed by that body to judge of the qualifications of its members—which, in this case, is the simple reiteration of the principle that "might gives right."

Recent developments, however, show that the plea of necessity will force the modification of the oath, so at least as to reach the cases of those who are absolutely needed in the South to carry on the machinery of government. It has been found out by actual experiment, that the class of persons in the South, who can take the oath, are too few, too incompetent, and in many cases too unreliable, to furnish a sufficient number of men of the right stripe, to meet the wants of the Treasury and other departments. There are a few very honorable exceptions, but for the most part too few. It is believed that these facts will force a modification of the oath. But, so far as members of Congress are concerned, there is no plea of this sort set up. Yet the necessity is as imperious in the one case as in the other. Will Congress, in the face of the Constitution, tax us, and yet refuse us representation? Can it so stultify itself before the world much longer? We hope not.

A Desirable Object.

The New York House with which our well known fellow citizen, D. W. Courts, Esq., is connected, has issued the following circular, the object of which is praiseworthy and desirable. Money is much needed in the South to carry on all our industrial operations, and in none more than in agriculture. One of the firm, Mr. Goodman, is well known to gentlemen in the South, and the connection of Mr. Courts with the house is a guarantee that it is every way responsible. We are not prepared, however, to endorse the plan of mortgaging lands to secure the payment of loans. A lien upon the crops, together with the personal responsibility of the borrowers, ought to be a sufficient guaranty for the amount required:

TO THE PLANTERS OF THE SOUTH.

We are making strenuous efforts to induce capitalists to advance money, upon satisfactory security, to relieve the pressing necessities of Southern Planters, and thus enable them to restore their plantations to something like their former productiveness. We have good promise of success, and hope to have it in our power to aid at least a portion of those who require such assistance. Planters who are desirous of such loans are invited to state their cases and circumstances, and we shall take pleasure in submitting their claims to capitalists. Good mortgage security will be expected, and terms advantageous to the capitalists, as they must also be to the Planter.

Contracts with the Freedmen.

This we consider an important subject; hence, we have published several articles, regulating in different sections the prices of labor, &c. One thing, however, must be considered. Every neighborhood should regulate its prices. Labor is worth much more in some sections than others. Moreover, it is worth more to cultivate cotton or tobacco or to make turpentine, than it is to cultivate grain. Hence, the prices paid in one neighborhood are not a proper criterion for another. The general management proposed in the following, by a meeting of the James River planters in Virginia recently, may be of general utility:

1st. That towards all freedmen in our employ we will act justly, and that we consider the following rates of wages fair and liberal, and that we pledge ourselves not to exceed them:

2d. A first-class field hand shall be paid by the year $130, a first-class field hand shall be paid by the month $10, a second-class field hand shall be paid by the year $105, a second-class field hand shall be paid by the month $8, a third-class field hand shall be paid by the year $70, a third-class field hand shall be paid by the month $5, a first-class woman (field hand) per month $5, second-class woman (field hand) per month $3.

3d. The classes are described as follows: first-class field hand, plowman; second-class field hand, good general farm hand; third-class farm hand, boy or old man.

4th. Each hand hired by the year shall have deducted a "per diem" (pro rata) for sickness, holidays or absence by leave of the employer.

5th. Each hand hired by the month shall be subject to the same deduction as those hired by the year, and in addition shall be charged one dollar a month for their fuel during the months of December, January, February and March.

6th. For disobedience of orders or insubordination, each hand will be charged one dollar.

7th. For leaving the farm without permission, one dollar will be charged each hand, in addition to the loss of time.

8th. Each hand will be held responsible for injury or loss to the stock and farming utensils, if occasioned by negligence, and the amount deducted from his wages.

9th. All of the hands will be required to submit to such rules, and work in such way, and at such times, either night or day, as was formerly customary in this section of the country. By this it is not meant that the farmers are to make a regular habit of requiring night work, but that they shall require such work only as it has been usual to have done at night.

10th. Twenty-six working days shall be considered as a month.

11th. The usual attendance on mules, horses and all other stock will be required on Sundays and holidays.

12th. Three quarters of an hour will be allowed for breakfast, and an hour for dinner, except during the months of June, July and August, when an hour will be allowed for breakfast and an hour and a half for dinner.

13th. No hand will be employed who has been discharged for misconduct or violation of contract.

14th. Each hand employed by the month shall give his employer ten day's notice of his intention to leave, or forfeit one-third of his month's wages.

15th. Each hand hired by the year shall be paid quarterly, the employer always keeping the hand one month's wages in arrears.

16th. The rations shall be as follows: For men, three pounds of meat per week; for women and boys, two pounds of meat per week, or its equivalent. For men, fifteen pounds of meal per week; for women and boys, twelve pounds of meal per week.

FROM WASHINGTON.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Examiner.]

WASHINGTON, JAN. 9.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. The day was less noticed on that account than at any former time since General Jackson was brought forward as a candidate for the Presidency. At the same time, it would seem to be worthy of remark, that the present occupant of the White House is affiliated with Jacksonism, bears his name, and, if he does not possess, does most honestly aim to exhibit, the same heroic qualities. The two Presidents came from the same State, both are of the same Scotch-Irish descent, they have the same name, if Jack and John are the same, and the one fought a civil battle against odds, while the other has gone into a fight under like advantages and disadvantages. Jackson's support was not from politicians, and neither will Johnson look for his strength to them. The people supported the one, and will bring out the other.

Andrew Johnson has repeatedly intimated to his conservative friends, that he was nominated and elected as Vice President, with a perfect knowledge, on the part of the Republicans, that he was an original Jackson Democrat, &c., and that he was always as much opposed to Northern as well as Southern aggression, and to Northern as well as Southern disunionism. He appears to be aware of the fact that, sooner or later, the people, both of the North and the South, will agree with him. If they do not, there will be no Union worth talking about.

General Carl Schurz's report upon the condition of affairs in the South, concluding with the recommendation that Congress or the President dispatch committees of investigation to the south for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of its loyalty, has made a profound impression upon Congress. Not that anybody even read it, but that they have become acquainted with the fact that it throws distrust upon every Southerner. It will no doubt govern the course of the Reconstruction Committee, and be conclusive as to the judgment of Congress.

Congress has not been demonstrative to-day, but I can, as yet, find no evidence that the Republicans, as a body, have at all changed their views during the recess upon the great question of the day—reconstruction.

CAPT. E. J. HALE, JR.—We call attention to the card of Capt. E. J. Hale, Jr., in our advertising columns. He is now connected with the house of Romme, Dunkle, Johnston & Co., dealers in hats, caps, furs, parasols, etc., 370 Broadway, New York; and is prepared to receive orders in anything in their line. We bespeak for Capt. Hale a large patronage. This is an unnecessary request to those who know him; but to those who do not know him, we take pleasure in recommending him as a gentleman in whom they can rely. Any order placed in his hands will be filled honestly and faithfully, and to the entire satisfaction of his patrons. The very soul of honor and integrity, he will never recommend an article above its value; and to any who may favor him with their patronage we will guarantee satisfaction in every particular.—Wilmington Dispatch.

NORTH CAROLINA JOURNALISM.—"The Mirror" is the title of a new and well-filled weekly just established in Greensboro, under the editorial auspices of James W. Albright, Esq.

That valuable religious paper, The Presbyterian, has resumed publication at Fayetteville, under the editorial control of Bart. Fuller and W. L. McKay, Esq. This is one of the best and ablest papers in the country, and deserves, as it will doubtless receive, an extensive patronage. The pressure of other matter upon our columns has prevented us, to our regret, from publishing the Prospectus of the publishers.

Message from the President.

The Case of Mr. Davis.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The President to-day, in response to a Senate resolution, transmitted a message, enclosing reports from the Secretary of War and Attorney General, in reference to the charges under which Mr. Davis is confined, and why he is not brought to trial.

He invites the attention of the Senate to that portion of his Annual Message referring to Congress the question relating to the holding of circuit courts in Districts where their authority has been interrupted.

The Secretary of War states that Mr. Davis has been indicted by the Supreme Court in the District of Columbia, for high treason; also with the crime of inciting the assination of Mr. Lincoln, and with the cruel treatment of prisoners of war. He also says that the President, deeming it expedient that Mr. Davis should first be put upon his trial before a competent court and jury, he was advised by the Law Officer of the Government that the most proper place for such trial was in the State of Virginia. That State is in the judicial circuit assigned to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, who has held no court there since the apprehension of Mr. Davis, and who declines for an indefinite period to do so.

Other prominent parties are mentioned in the Secretary's Report, charged with various treasonable offences against the Government, some of whom have been released by the Government, to await their trial for the alleged offences, on their application for amnesty and pardon.

The Attorney General says that he has ever thought the Civil Courts alone have jurisdiction in cases of the crime of high treason, and pronounces the opinion that Mr. Davis and others of the insurgents ought to be tried in some one of the States or Districts which those who are in prison especially controlled when the crimes with which they may be charged were committed. Though active hostilities and flagrant war have not for some time existed between the United States and the insurgents, peaceful relations between the Government and people in those States or Districts in rebellion have not yet been fully restored. None of the Justices of the Supreme Court have held Circuit Courts in these States and Districts since hostilities ceased. When the Courts are open and the laws can be peacefully administered and enforced in those States, and among those people who rebelled against the Government—when this peace shall come in fact and in law, the persons now held in military custody as prisoners of war, and who may not have been tried and committed for offences against the laws of war, should be transferred into the custody of the civil authorities of the proper Districts, to be tried for such high crimes and misdemeanors as may be alleged against them. He thinks it the plain duty of the President to cause criminal prosecutions to be instituted before the proper tribunals at the proper time against some of those who were mainly instrumental in inaugurating and the most conspicuous in conducting the late hostilities.

In conclusion the Attorney General says: "I would regard it as a direful calamity, if many, whom the sword has spared, should also be spared by the law; but would deem it a more direful calamity still, if the Executive, in performing his constitutional duty in bringing those persons before the bar of justice to answer for their crimes, should violate the plain meaning of the Constitution, or infringe in the least particular the living spirit of that instrument."

The centenary celebration of Methodism in America was celebrated in an appropriate manner in all the Methodist churches of Baltimore, Sunday.

A rather comical action for alimony came up in the Supreme Court chambers, New York, on Saturday. The title of the case is Ellen A. Price vs. Joel D. Price. The plaintiff was separated from her husband by a legal decree, which included alimony, and the present motion is made to recover the money. The defence set up was that plaintiff is deceased, and consequently not in need of alimony.

The receipts of tobacco at St. Louis for 1865 were 16,407 hogsheads, against 42,673 hogsheads for 1864. The total estimated crop of the State for 1865, however, only falls short of that for 1864 about two million pounds, and is generally of a better quality.

The safe contained a large amount of money.

GENERAL LEE IN RICHMOND.—Last evening, General Robert E. Lee, the honored President of that time-honored institution, Washington College, in Lexington, Virginia, arrived in this by the Central train. A NEW PARTY.—Thurlow Weed says: "A new party has recently been formed. Its watchword is, "The South is Triumphant;" its motto, "The States are Dead;' its purpose, 'To hold the South as Conquered Territory.' It has, three members—Wendell Phillips, Charles J. Sumner and Thaddeus Stevens. Against them stand arrayed all the people. If You are threatened with Pneumonia, read the following from Capt. W. P. Davis, of Petersburg, Virginia:

"Sympathy for the suffering prompts me to certify that my servant man was suffering in the last stage of Pneumonia throwing up matter and blood in large quantities; his case was considered hopeless, so much so, that there was no medical prescription used for his recovery; I regarded him as go dead. Hearing of the great cures made by the SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS, I thought that I would try an experiment on him; without any hope of success however, I gave the Pills in large doses; in a short time, to my great surprise, there was a change for the better. I continued giving them to him until he became a perfectly sound man. He is now attending to his work with as much strength and vigor as he ever did. With his case, and what I have seen and heard of the good effect of these Pills, I do most earnestly recommend them as the best family medicine I have ever seen or used."

Desirable Farm for Sale.

THE PLANTATION SITUATED ABOUT TWO and a half miles from the village of Magnolia on the Wilmington and Weldon R. R., between that place and Kenansville, and known as "Barbacue," is offered for sale. The tract contains 360 acres, 160 of which are cleared and have been under cultivation, producing excellent Corn, Wheat, potatoes, &c. A portion of the land is also well adapted to the culture of cotton. An inexhaustible bed of Marl, a large spring of as good water as can be found in the State, and a never failing stream, running through the center of the cleared land are among the attractions of the place.

The timbered portion of the land being nearest the Rail Road and the entire place being easy of access to a first rate market, make it a highly desirable location for growing produce, raising stock and selling timber. Any one having the cash, can procure a bargain by applying immediately to

DAILY SENTINEL.

WE. E. PELL, Proprietor.

The Baron De Kalb.

We all know the story of Sir WALTER RALEIGH, when he was writing his history of the world in the Tower, and we all see, every day, the truth of the moral it inculcates. It is the hardest thing in the world to find any two witnesses of the most simple transaction who will agree in reporting it.

We were struck with the force of this truth, not long since, upon reading, in WHEELER'S History of North Carolina, a narrative of the circumstances attending the death of the Baron DE KALB by an eye-witness. The narrator was an officer of high rank, a North Carolinian—who were taken prisoner in the battle of Camden—the battle in which DE KALB fell. We forget his name, but he was subsequently a man of mark in the State, and of a character entirely unimpeachable.

The common accounts of the affair, published in all the histories, is, that DE KALB fell fighting at the head of his troops—that the enemy pressed upon him, and were on the point of dispatching him with their bayonets when one of his aids stood above him, and, stretching out his arms, cried, "Save the Baron DE KALB"—that the enemy then ceased to advance on him, and that he was removed, and shortly after died of his wounds.

The eye-witness says, having surrendered, he was standing within the enemy's lines, when he saw the Baron, in full uniform, ride down the remnant of his own line; that he met one of the enemy on horseback, and offered him his sword in token of surrender, asking him in French if he was an officer; that the man, not understanding the language, ordered him, with an oath, to surrender; that the Baron, scorning to surrender to any one who was not an officer, and not having ascertained whether his opponent was such, rode on in search of an officer; that he—the narrator—heard a number of British soldiers say, "That is a rebel General, shoot him"—that they all fired and brought him to the ground; that he arose and scuffled to the tail of a cart, upon which he took hold with both hands and leaned, with his body bent and his head hanging down, and his eyes fixed on the ground; that, while in this attitude, Cornwallis came up in full gallop in pursuit of the flying rebels: that he halted when he saw De Kalb;—that when he found he was desperately wounded, he expressed his sorrow, ordered him to be removed and taken care of, and galloped on.

We have not Wheeler's book at hand, but we believe we have given the substance of the statement with tolerable accuracy. It is farther stated, we think, that he received seven musket balls. We wish we could recollect the name of the man who gives the account, but it has escaped our memory, although he was a man of national reputation. The only thing that seems to throw any doubt upon the accuracy of the account is that part of it which represents De Kalb as speaking French upon such an occasion, when it is well known that he had English enough at command for the purpose indicated. But here it must be recollected that the witness was standing some distance off, and probably did not hear the words himself, but received the account from some Englishman. The manner of De Kalb's death is surely a subject worthy of investigation, and we wonder this statement has never received more attention since the publication of Wheeler's book. All the actors in the scene, we presume, are dead, and it is probably, therefore, too late to begin such an inquiry. But still something might be found, we should think, among the unpublished private papers of actors in the revolution.—Richmond Dispatch.

NOTIONS OF THE INSANE.—The vagaries of the insane are sometimes amusing to witness; and not unfrequently there is a method in their madness that would not be amiss in those who are on the outside of lunatic asylums. Many years ago, in Philadelphia, a patient in the insane asylum of that city fancied himself to be the Redeemer of the world; and his talk and actions were always in keeping with the character, save that he exacted a rigid deference to his person and his divinely-derived power. But one day another patient arrived, whose idiosyncrazy it was that he was the Supreme Being.—A little while after his entrance into the institution, he went into one of the halls, and was passing the imagined representative of the Son, who, not liking his bearing, reminded him who he was.

"Yes, you are the Son, but know, from this time henceforth, that you have seen the Father, and must obey him!"

"And strange enough," said the keeper of the institution to the friend who gives us the particulars, "from that day forward all power was given unto the latter; and at length the fancied Son's fair-drawn vision melted away, and he left the establishment a perfectly sane man."

Some twelve or fifteen years ago, there was in the lunatic asylum at Worcester, Massachusetts, a kind of crazy Davy Crockett, who fancied that he could do anything that could be done, and a little more. One day, a good many visitors were walking slowly through the halls, examining them, and occasionally saying a word or two to the patients. After a very courteous reception of a gentleman who mentioned that he had come from South Carolina, the crazy man interrupted him abruptly with:

"Have you felt any of my earthquakes down there, lately?"

"No," replied one of the visitors, "we have had nothing of the kind where I live."

"I thought so! I knew it!" replied the patient, frowning. "I have an enemy. Ice! Ice! Why, I ordered one of my very best earthquakes for your part of the country. It was to have torn up the earth, and sent the Mississippi into the Gulf of Mexico." "Look here," he continued, pointing to a crack in the plastering, "that is one of my earthquakes. What do you think of that? I have got more orders for earthquakes than I can attend to in a year. I have got four coming off North this afternoon, and two in Vermont!"

SERVED HIM RIGHT.—I was on the Bristol stage that the eminent tragedian Macready commenced playing those despotic pranks which ever afterwards made him so unpopular among his brethren of the boards. I recollect several instances of these. In one of his parts—I forget which—Mr. Macready was in the habit of violently grasping the shoulder of another actor named Barton. Mr. Barton at last ventured to remonstrate with him: "Mr. Macready," said he, politely, at rehearsal, "I beg you will not squeeze my shoulder so hard. It is quite black and blue already." Mr. Macready muttered something about "he didn't know what he was doing in the passion of the moment," and surlily walked away. But on that very evening he repeated the grievance. The next day Barton got his wife to sew a pincushion inside the shoulder of his coat sleeve, with plenty of pins in it, stuck up in porcupine fashion, the points the wrong way.

The play was repeated. At the usual crisis, Macready was as energetic as ever. Down came his hand with great violence upon Mr. Barton's shoulder, and the great tragedian felt more than "the pricking of his thumbs," for when he removed his hand (which he did not, spite of the torture, until the part rendered it necessary,) his palm was bloody and sore. He never grasped that actor's shoulders afterwards.

Macready never hesitated in spoiling another actor's points so that he made his own. When he was on the stage, no one's interests were to conflict with his. He had repeatedly marred the intended "hits" of a certain actor, who determined to have revenge, and he had it in this way: Macready was playing "Macbeth." When he commenced the soliloquy—"Is this a dagger that I see before me?" the injured actor who had ascended to the "flies," dropped down right before his face an enormous German sausage transfixed with a skewer. The reader may imagine the roars of the audience, and the rage of the Thane of Cawdor.
